Norfolk City Auditorium was dedicated in June 1940. Beckenhauer Brothers was hired as the general contractor and construction began March 1, 1939. The building continues to serve as a valuable community center today. According to the city manager, "It's built like the Bastille...it's still a very useful structure."

A Part of History Relived...

“Oldest Bank in Madison County”
Unveils New Facilities on Original Site

It might have been less stressful to build on a new site and only move once, but the owners of the Tilden Bank never considered that as an option. Tilden, Nebraska, is one of those towns where the county line cuts right through the middle of the town. Being known as the oldest bank in Madison County was a designation Tilden Bank did not want to relinquish. The bank wanted to upgrade its facilities and the best way to do that and stay in Madison County was to temporarily relocate.

Tilden Bank now has a brand new building, yet retains the title as “the oldest bank in Madison County.” We here at Beckenhauer Construction are pleased to have been a part of constructing this beautiful, modern facility.
